As an Agriculture Education Teacher for Muhlenberg Co High School West Campus, Scott Cronin took it upon himself to become an Explore Bowhunting instructor back in its infancy in KY during the fall of 2011. Since becoming an instructor, Scott has used the program to enhance his wildlife management courses, supplement and extend his students knowledge of hunting and wildlife conservation, and even expanded his program to include a neighboring elementary school each year. This Elementary school Turkey & Wildlife day exposes the elementary school kids to conservation and Ag practices through fun EB activities taught by his high school students and introduces the students to other conservation organizations. He continues to provide KDFWR with contacts throughout the state to help increase awareness and support of the program. His consistent reporting to KDFWR has provided record that his Explore bowhunting program participation is fast approaching 2,000 students through events and programs since 2011. Congratulations to Mr. Scott Cronin on his earning of the 1st Annual Explore Bowhunting Instructor of the Year Award!
